

12TH ANNUAL
INTERNATIONAL AGROECOLOGY SHORTCOURSE

AGROECOLOGY

& the Transformation of Food Systems: the California Model

An intensive work and living experience from breakfast through dinner and afterwards!

- Organized from an interdisciplinary, participatory action research (PAR) approach, it balances applied and conceptual work.
- The course modules range from basic agroecological principles to transforming food systems.
- Activities will include: presentations given by specialists, group discussions on food system issues, hands-on field activities, individual and group presentations, and field trips.

This course is for everyone working for change in food systems!

July 10-23, 2011
Sustainable Living Center
UCSC campus
Santa Cruz, CA

APPLY NOW

Send a short resume and cover letter (by email shortcourse2011@canunite.org or by post) explaining your background, current work, and reasons for wanting to participate in the course.

Applications will be received until the course is filled. Enrollment limited to 40. Early applications are strongly recommended.

A working knowledge of English is required.

MORE INFORMATION

For more information on logistics, fees and content please go to:

www.agroecology.org
www.canunite.org

If you have questions, please email shortcourse2011@canunite.org

SPONSORS

ORGANIZED BY: Community Agroecology Network · University of California, Santa Cruz · Program in Community and Agroecology

www.agroecology.org  www.canunite.org

